Culver came to discuss the possibility of partnering with the senate in revising the survey.

- b. Committee on Research Competitiveness (CRC) – Jen Irish reported the COR CRC prioritized the Spring 2015 faculty survey responses based on university priorities to (1) attract and retain faculty and student talent, (2) enhance ability to attract funding, (3) enhance international and national visibility, and (4) promote entrepreneurship. The CRC, in collaboration with Drs. Rikakis and Mayer last spring, thus identified the following common high-priority goals:
 - Sustain successful and productive research programs.
 - Increase research funding from prominent, external sources (e.g., philanthropic foundations, industry).
 - Ensure access to large, state-of-the-art instrumentation.In FY17, COR's CRC plans to coordinate with other campus entities to solicit additional feedback from faculty via focus groups in the above three areas. The CRC is soliciting new members from COR.

- b. Overview of New On-Line Conflict of Interest (COI) System – V. Ratcliffe The Office of the Vice President for Research and Innovation has launched a Conflict of Interest Disclosure and Management System (COISystem). The online system will replace Form 13010 Request to Engage in External Activity and Disclosure of Conflict of Interest and Commitment. This form is required by Policy 13010 Individual Conflicts of Interest and Commitment when employees plan to engage in certain outside activities or report financial interests to the university. The desired outcome of this system is to reduce disclosure completion time and to streamline the review and approval of disclosures. <https://secure.research.vt.edu/coi>
